Volume 5/4 August 2017

From the Editors,

Dear IJLA readers,

We are in summer and this means “holiday” for most of the people, but thinking minds continue to produce. We are happy to offer a small contribution to the science which is the most important part of human culture. IJLA is a specialized journal in the field of language. In every volume, there is an effort to present researches to the world of science that will make it easier for us to deeper understand the language of mankind, which is the instrument of the universe. Being aware that science is the sole observer of human horizon, the studies we have taken to this volume have been carefully selected. This journal couldn't be published if we did not have the referees who contributed to us during the long and exhausting evaluation process. Endless thanks to everybody who contributes. We present you our new volume in the hope that our readers will benefit from it.
